RAILROAD TRACK TORN UP.—The Board of Public Works, in Washington, having made up their minds to tear up the track of the A. & W. R. R. which runs in front of the western end of the Capitol, last night, the contractors in charge of the street gradings were notified to be prepared for the event, with all the necessary implements, and when the hour arrived to accomplish their work with the least possible delay.

By request of the board a strong detail of police were on hand to maintain order if their services were required.

The contractors notified their men that they would require them for a night's work, and they were accordingly rendezvoused—one hundred and fifty at the corner of North Capitol and E streets, and fifty just in the rear of Galt's feed-house, on Indiana avenue.

About 7:45, one gang, headed by a man bearing a red lantern, marched down the hill to First street, and every other armed with a pick, sledge or crow bar.

In the meantime, the other crowd had crossed Indiana avenue, and, after a consultation, it was agreed that they should go to work just at the corner of First street, and the other party should take Maryland avenue. Before, however, they had got to work the Southern train, connecting with the 8:30 train North, came up the track and necessitated a delay during which time the men retreated.

The Washington Republican says fully half an hour was lost in waiting for the track to be cleared, which was finally accomplished, and at 8:30 o'clock Contractor Smith put his gang of men at work, starting at the intersection of First street and Indiana avenue. The men worked with a will, but the track was closely knit together, and considerable trouble was experienced in tearing it up, but the laborers were not discouraged, and by dint of persevering they made fair progress, for soon a break was made, and gradually, but surely, rail after rail was elevated and the old track removed.

At 10 o'clock it was apparent that no interference would be made with the operations of the contractor, and Lieut. Kelly directed his reserve force to return to the station.

Mr. Geo. S. Koonitz put in an appearance on the scene about 9:30 p. m., and inquired for the superintendent of the work, but failed to receive any response to the inquiry, after which he quietly remarked that he could take ten men and relay the track in less time than it took the gang to pull it up. The contractor replied that the men were only learning but by the time they finished that job he thought they would be posted enough to build a railroad.

On Maryland avenue the men were divided into three gangs, one at the corner of First street, and the other two on either side of Four-and-a-half street. After the engine had passed back a man was stationed with a signal lantern at the corner of Sixth street, and a moment later a simultaneous attack was made on the rails, the first one raised being on the west side of Four-and-a-half street, which was followed in quick succession by those on other portions of the road. The men worked quietly and surely, but the job was not an easy one by any means. Timbers were used as levers, bars, and sledges, and picks were brought into requisition, and piled as they were by the strong arms of the willing laborers made even the deeply imbedded ties and the strongly secured rails give way.

During the evening quite a number of passers-by were attracted by the unusual number and noise, and remained as spectators for a few moments, but as no interference was shown by the railroad men it became monotonous and they left.

About midnight the men had got the "hang" of the work pretty well, and it was expected that by this morning the entire length of the track would be completely torn up.

The locomotive that carried the through passengers from Lynchburg to Washington last night returned here, but the train to which it was attached was caught on the other side of the destroyed track, and will either have to get back here via Winchester or the B. & P. R. R. The passengers that went through this morning from Lynchburg were carried from the 6th street depot to the B. & O. depot in omnibuses, and the train that took them to Washington received the same conveyances, and brought them on to this city, but the departure of the train on the O. & A. & M. R. R. was delayed about an hour by the interruption.

The cable that arrived here last night went on through via the B. & P. R. R., but no arrangement has been made this morning for the through transportation of others sorts of freight. The officials of the B. & O., the B. & P. and the O. & A. & M. R. R. were in consultation in Washington to-day, and it is supposed that arrangements for the through transportation of both freight and passengers, without delay, will be determined upon speedily.

CHRIST CHURCH.—The correspondent of the Washington Chronicle gives a notice of Sunday in Alexandria, and of Christ Church, from which the following extracts are taken:

"This morning the pulpit was filled by Dr. Walker, of the Theological Seminary, who preached an excellent sermon. The Doctor is a clear talker and reasoner, and while rather long is always interesting."

In this connection your readers may not object to hearing something about "Old Christ Church." This is one of the oldest Episcopal churches in the United States, being built long before the Revolution, with bricks brought from England. It is built in the substantial manner that once was the rule but is now the exception, and the walls to-day are as substantial and firm as the day when first erected. The northern side is covered with ivy, which, for more than a century, has clung to the house of God as man should cling to a gracious Saviour. It is in a lot situated on Washington, Cameron and Columbus streets, taking up half a square of ground. The Church is in the northwest corner of the lot, on Cameron and Columbus streets, and fronts south. The vestry room is in the western end, under the belfry, and the pulpit (more properly, by channel, for the old pulpit is a thing of the past) is in the eastern end. On the other side of the chancel are two tablets, erected in memory of two distinguished citizens of Virginia, and whose vestrymen were also members of the church, in public life, were as beautiful as it was unostentatious. I mean George Washington, of Mount Vernon, which is only seven miles along by our own beautiful Potomac, along whose banks he every Sabbath morning rode to worship his God in old Christ Church.

His pew, a double one, is still preserved as it was, except that the high backs of the pews have long since been cut down to suit the more modern style of the present age. The other tablet is in memory of Robert E. Lee, of Arlington, a gentleman of rare Christian virtue, and a soldier of whom we all know. Rev. Randolph H. McKim, the Rector of the Church is about 30 years of age; is a Baltimorean by birth. He joined the Southern army, and served during the war. He is a man of considerable ability, and promises to be one of the most prominent men in the church.

His simplicity and earnestness make him a general favorite. He has just returned from a summer trip to Europe. He came to Alexandria in 1867-8, to succeed Rev. Robert E. Lee. The lecture will be delivered at SAREPTA HALL, beginning at 8 p. m. Tickets can be obtained from any of the Directors, from the Librarian, or at George E. French's Bookstore. Price of admission fifty cents. nov 19-45

PROPERTY SALE.—Greed & Wise, Real Estate Agents, sold to-day the cottage situated on the west side of Washington street, north of Franklin, the former residence of the late C. G. Brown, to Mr. E. L. Tolson, for the sum of $1,875.

CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY—Judge Keith Presiding.—Southern Protection Insurance Co. vs. Close; motion for new trial granted, but decision reversed.

INTERESTING.—The perusal of the extensive advertisement, in another column, of the large quantities of holiday goods arriving at Green's Notion House, will be read with interest by every individual in the city. Parties wanting every individual in that line can have all their wants supplied by calling at Green's Mammoth Toy Establishment.

GENERAL WADEHAMPTON will deliver a Lecture in Alexandria, ON THE 27th NOVEMBER, FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE LIBRARY.

Subject: "The life and character of General Robert E. Lee." The lecture will be delivered at SAREPTA HALL, beginning at 8 p. m. Tickets can be obtained from any of the Directors, from the Librarian, or at George E. French's Bookstore. Price of admission fifty cents. nov 19-45 session of by the military and a Northern minister put in charge. All the Episcopal settlers here during the war made it their place of worship because it was "Washington's Church," and had a minister who agreed with them politically.

For a quarter of a century Rev. Dr. Dana was pastor; he was called to the church directly after being ordained, and became the idol of his parishioners. He grew old in the service of his Master in the old ivy-covered walls, and all thought that death would only part him and his people; but it was not to be thus. The old bachelor had grown old among the fair flock around him and had followed to the grave many of the spinsters who had looked at him with loving eyes; when in his prime he took charge of the church five and twenty years before. As years went by he joined in marriage many whom he "might have loved."

Little children, those that but yesterday were at the baptismal font, made members of the church militant by him, now claimed his services as brides and bridegrooms; and in the later days of his ministry many were the children he baptized for whose fathers he had performed the same office. And years rolled on, he could not choose among the marriageable ladies of his flock a suitable partner for life, and the idea of his marrying passed out of the minds of many. One day a rumor was circulated that Mr. Dana was married. At first it was laughed at; then who was the lucky lady? A Miss Close, (a sister of the late Colonel Close) a lady teacher in his Sunday school, probably twenty-five years his junior. Everybody in town knew Mr. Dana, and everybody liked him, especially the elderly maiden ladies, who often invited him to tea. [The correspondent then mentions the difficulties that ensued in the congregation, subsequent to the marriage.] The vestry invited him to resign, which he did, and in the month of December, 1860, he bid adieu to his flock that he had seen grow up and flourish as the beautiful flowers of the spring. He was succeeded by Mr. Walker, who retained his pulpit but a short time, when Mr. McDermugh, a Northern minister, was installed. After the close of the war, Mr. Randolph had charge one year, and was succeeded, as I have told you, by Mr. McKim, whom we all hope will stay with us for many long years to come. He can't have the trouble Mr. D. had, as he was already married when he came among us. He has refused several very fine calls since he has been here. We all hope he may continue to do likewise whenever other people try to take him away from us.

CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE CORPORATION—Judge Keith presiding.—The docket was called, and the following cases set:

L. H. & F. Insurance Co. vs. M. Eldridge & Co., revived in name of H. S. Wattles, assumpsit.

Court adjourned till ten o'clock to-morrow.

NEW RAILROAD INVENTION.—Mr. George French, civil engineer, has invented, and has on exhibition, at the carpenter's shop of Mr. Stephen Swain, an improvement in locomotives, by which light engines can draw more, and up steeper grades than the heavy ones now in use. The invention consists in a simple contrivance by which the driving wheels are made to increase or diminish their "bite" upon the rail by being raised or lowered, at the will of the engineer. In the construction of his model, Mr. French has discovered that by his invention the "bite" of such wheels as he uses, upon wooden or iron rails is greater than upon rails made of iron. The practical effect of the invention will be to render the construction of feeders to the main lines of railroads a matter of easy accomplishment, as wooden rails can be used, and trains run on the grades of ordinary turnpikes.

SUN FIRE COMPANY.—At a numerously attended meeting of the Sun Fire Company, held in Harmonic Hall, last night, with William Webster, President in the chair, and W. C. Markell, Secretary, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the members of the Sun Fire Company cordially tender their services to the Hydration Company and pledge their assistance in the running of their apparatus in case of fire.

Resolved, That in the event of the Columbia Company requiring aid under like circumstances the members of this company pledge themselves to render it so far as in them lies.

BREAK IN THE ALEXANDRIA CANAL.—A break of about seventy-five yards in length occurred early this morning on the tow path bank of the Alexandria Canal, just above the viaduct at Four Mile Run. The water was drawn off immediately, but it is feared that by the time the necessary repairs are completed navigation will have been closed for the winter.
